

TABLE OF CONTENTS

PREFACE.....	9
INTRODUCTION.....	13
The Americanisation of European architecture: a brief historiography	18
Methodology and sources	23
Selection of cases and structure	27
CHAPTER 1: UNPICKING THE THREADS OF AMERICANISATION.....	31
1.1. Introduction.....	32
1.2. World's Fairs and first impressions of the New World.....	32
1.3. Industry and economy as catalysts of exchange	37
1.4. From skyscrapers to women architects: architectural encounters and cultural internationalism	42
1.5. Transatlantic travel and architects as vehicles of exchange.....	47
1.6. Exploring new horizons: Belgian architectural students and the discovery of American architecture	54
1.7. Belgian architectural journals and the debate on American architecture.....	61
CHAPTER 2: PRE-WAR ARCHITECTURAL EXCHANGE, 1890-1914.....	71
2.1. Introduction.....	72
2.2. World's Columbian Exposition.....	78
2.3. Belgium's reaction to the American skyscraper	84
2.4. A land of comfort: Belgian reports on American domestic architecture	91
2.5. Defending the picturesque: Charles Buls and the unsolvable problem of American architecture	98
2.6. Paul Saintenoy and the maturity of American architecture	105
2.7. Conclusion	113
CHAPTER 3: WAR, AMERICAN RELIEF AND SHIFTING PERSPECTIVES: THE CASE OF ARCHITECT VICTOR HORTA.....	117
3.1. Introduction.....	118

3.2.	From Brussels to New York.....	122
3.3.	Victor Horta’s American lectures on Belgian historical Architecture.....	129
3.4.	Lessons from the US: Horta’s analysis of American architecture	138
3.5.	Conclusion.....	150
CHAPTER 4: REBUILDING BELGIUM? AMERICAN REHABILITATION PROJECTS AND THE QUESTION OF AMERICANISATION.....		153
4.1.	Introduction.....	154
4.2.	America’s contested gift to Belgium: the Louvain University Library	162
4.3.	The Rockefeller Foundation’s support for the University of Brussels’ medical facilities	183
4.4.	The Commission for Relief in Belgium Educational Foundation and a new campus for the University of Brussels	207
4.5.	A matter of impact: rehabilitating a nation, or Americanising its architecture?	228
4.6.	Conclusion.....	230
CHAPTER 5: BUILDING THE MODERN METROPOLIS		234
5.1.	Introduction.....	235
5.2.	The arrival of the skyscraper: Palace Hotel and the pre-war debate on high-rise architecture	240
5.3.	Elevated living: Residence Palace, the post-war housing crisis and the dawn of the tall apartment building.....	251
5.4.	Architect Jan Vanhoenacker and the consolidation of the Belgian skyscraper in the 1920s and 30s	265
5.5.	By the force of industry: Léon Rucquoi, L'Ossature métallique and the advocacy of steel construction in the 1930s	276
5.6.	The fight against skyscrapers, a battle to defend national culture?	288
5.7.	Conclusion.....	298
GENERAL CONCLUSION.....		303
SOURCES AND BIBLIOGRAPHY.....		310