Short Biography

Valéry Ann JACOBS was born in Belgium on December 4th, 1981. After finishing high school in 2000, she landed in a commercial function at a company that allowed her to continuously travel across Europe while obtaining a degree in photography in evening courses. Only later, she decided to pursue an academic education in science. In 2008, she graduated as a bachelor in Physics with a minor in Mathematics and in 2010 as a master in Astronomy and Astrophysics from the University of Leuven (KU Leuven), Belgium. After working for a year in the energy sector, she returned to academia to work towards a PhD degree in the frame of a joint-PhD between the Vrije Universiteit Brussel (VUB) and KU Leuven. In 2015, she obtained the degrees of PhD in Engineering Technology at KU Leuven and PhD in Engineering Sciences at VUB (with highest distinction, summa cum laude), by studying the metrology, photometry and colorimetry of arrays of LEDs, mainly applied to surgical luminaires. Since then, she has been working fulltime as a Professor in light and lighting at VUB in the department of Electrical Engineering and Energy Technology (ETEC), where she is the team-lead of Merlin, a group of 3 professors, 1 post-doc, 5 motivated PhD students, 1 scientific collaborator and an administrative and technical support team. They work in fields of V2X communication using visible light, daylighting, electrical lighting, multisensorial spaces, comfort & wellbeing. Since 2020, she has also been appointed academic advisor on wellbeing to the vice-chancellor of the university and since 2021 she is also a member of the national health council in Belgium.
